

Church Divinity School of the Pacific Fall 2021 COURSE MODALITIES

The Fall 2021 semester at CDSP will be held in an in-person format, with traditional residential courses meeting in the classroom and online courses being held in an asynchronous online format.

“Asynchronous online” means that students access their course materials and complete their work online (e.g., in Moodle) but do not meet at specific set times. “Remote synchronous” means that students meet at specific set times via remote technology (e.g., Zoom).

The CDSP campus will be closed to the public this fall, and all students and community members who participate in residential campus activities must submit proof of vaccination. Students may be asked to wear masks for in-person activities, depending upon ongoing health advisory guidelines.

Residential students are expected to enroll in required courses designated for residential students, in order to foster a community of learning among their cohort. They may enroll in online courses as electives. Residential CDSP students who wish to take a residential course in a remote synchronous modality because they are not able to attend classes in person may make an accommodation request through the Dean of Students’ office.

GTU students who wish to cross-register may enroll in any CDSP course, in-person or online. All students who register for in-person courses MUST submit proof of COVID-19 vaccination to their home school’s registrar before they will be added to the roster. Cross-registered students must check in at the CDSP Welcome Center before class time to gain access to the classroom. Cross-registered students are not eligible for accommodations to access in-person classes remotely.
